Naming Names

In many news situations more will be printed than may have been customary in the recent past because the public is requiring greater incisiveness in what it reads and hears.

The self-cleaning efforts within the democratic system of freedom demand an informed public that is insisting on being better informed. Burdened with a multiplicity of laws beyond the capacity of police to enforce, the public is calling upon governmental agencies to make known the violators of regulations, orders, administrative rulings, on the theory that certain results can be achieved through the use of publicity.

New York City has begun to announce the names of restaurants and markets which violate the health codes. The New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets is naming those who fail to meet the state requirements as to marketing and meat inspection, milk sanitation and also is listing the establishments from which bad meat and foods have been seized.

Sanitation requirements are drafted on behalf of consumers and the whole society. Many consumers and much of society determine their purchasing habits after learning who breaks the standards.

In periods of mistrust the truth has a way of getting out. This becomes the best guidance that citizens can possess, and they are increasingly insistent upon getting the names and places. The public is not powerless when it learns the truth. The same public today is relying upon their brand of power in asking that facts be printed so they can form their own opinions as to what is right and wrong and make their own decision accordingly.—Huntington (W. Marrying Couples Head for Wilderness Ranch

ENUMCLAW, Wash. (AP) — If you're tired of traditional weddings, then drive past the city dump, the pickle factory, Pete's swimming pool and then up a dirt road and straight into the forest to a secluded wedding haven called Little Lake Ranch.

In clear twilight, Mt. Rainier, snowcapped and ponderous, broods over the scene. There will be lots of witnesses—handy—peacocks spreading their glorious tails in search of pea hens, swans craning their necks as they bob up and down on a sylvan lake and chattering geese and ducks.

A woman who "just liked seeing people get married" has turned her 160-acre ranch into a wilderness wedding site. Vera Dyer came here from British Columbia with her husband 20 years ago. They built up their ranch and enlarged a pond into a lake.

After the death of her husband, things got too quiet for Mrs. Dyer, better known as Lady Vera, so she let friends hold their weddings outdoors and use a two-room guest house for their honeymoons.

A few years ago she turned her hobby into a business, advertising the Little Lake Ranch as a marriage site.

The couples bring their own minister. Recently, Lady Vera invited newsmen to attend one of the weddings of a young couple.

The ceremony was complete with electric organ. The audience included the ranch animals—ducks, swans, peacocks, cattle and geese.

Lady Vera, in a shining salmon-colored gown, seemed to have more fun than anybody.

"I'm not really Lady Vera or Lady Dyer," she said. "I'm not a lady, just Mrs., but people have always called me Lady and I'm used to it. But isn't this marvelous?"

Wallace No.1 on Popular Vote Count

By DON McLEOD
AP Political Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — If popular votes were delegates, George C. Wallace would be leading the race for the Democratic presidential nomination.

In 16 primaries with some kind of presidential preference voting Wallace has accumulated 3,407,453 votes, compared with 2,372,755 for George McGovern.

But McGovern has 497½ convention delegates lined up and predicts he will have 1,300 by the time the Democratic National Convention opens in Miami Beach July 10. Wallace has 323 delegates—about the number he is expected to take to the convention.

McGovern, more than one million votes behind Wallace, isn't even in second place in popular votes. He trails Hubert H. Humphrey's 2,654,906, although Humphrey is in third place with 295½ delegates.

Wallace has entered 13 primaries and won five of them, finishing second in another five. Humphrey has won four of 13, coming in second four times. McGovern has won five of 12 and finished second three times.

Wallace's campaign has been aimed at the popular turnout without any thought to the attendant delegate selection. Where primary success translated automatically into delegates, he won them.

For example, Wallace finished a strong second in Wisconsin but didn't get a single delegate. In Pennsylvania he was second in the popular vote but elected only two delegates.

In West Virginia Wallace lost a two-man race to Humphrey but got 33 per cent of the vote. Still he didn't get one delegate.

MEDIEVAL TRADITION survives in the 20th-century ceremonies of the Vatican. A new member of the Swiss Guards, the Pope's personal guard since 1506, is sworn in at colorful rites in the St. Damascus Courtyard. Members, recruited from Roman Catholic cantons in Switzerland, wear orange, blue and red uniforms designed by Michelangelo.

Man's Memories Enrich Life

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Memory gives meaning to life.

Without it life would lack direction, recognition, coordinated drives and appreciation. The more memories a man has, the richer his life must be.

You have a great deal of wealth if you can look back and remember when—

There were only 46 stars in the U.S. flag.

The only foreign language most Americans learned consisted of a few random phrases of the tongue native to their immigrant parents or grandparents.

A majority of smokers carried small packets of wooden matches in their pockets. Some ladies and a few dudes used wax matches.

Imbibers chewed Sen Sen to take the odor of liquor off their breath, but even children learned to know that when papa came home smelling of Sen Sen he probably had stopped off for one too many at the corner saloon.

It was part of every small American boy's dream to have a Boy Scout knife tied to his belt with a shoelace and an Ingersoll dollar watch in his pocket.

Any boy who didn't have his long hair cut by the time he entered kindergarten became a source of shame to his father.

You could hire a maid all day for $2, and if the cat made a mess the maid would clean it up without complaining that she had a weak stomach.

The neighborhood handy man would cut the lawn for 50 cents—and charge nothing for eating up all the leftover food in the icebox.

Even though the only way to start a car was to bend over and spin its hand crank until you were red in the face, fewer people seemed to die of strokes than now.

You could usually wear a white shirt to the office two days in a row if you rubbed its starched collar and cuffs with a gum eraser at the end of the first day. The shirts cost $1 each at special sales.

Life was so hard in itself that people were perhaps essentially kinder to one another than they are today.

Those were the days—remember?

Pine Bluff Site For Reformatory

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Marshall Rush, chairman of the state Board of Correction, said Wednesday that the new women's reformatory will be located at Pine Bluff.

The new reformatory will replace the present facility at Cummins Prison Farm. Pine Bluff already is the site of the Boys' Training School.

Rush said the board agreed on the Pine Bluff site after touring it and a site at the Benton unit of the State Hospital.

The Penal and Charitable Institutions Committee of the Legislative Council met with the board Wednesday and agreed to support the board's decision.

The board has $916,000 to fund the construction with $300,000 of this coming from state funds and the remainder from the federal government.

Rush said 120 acres already have been donated to the Department of Correction for construction of the reformatory. Eighty acres came from the city and 40 from private individuals.

Alligators Released

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Federal rangers have released 19 alligators in the White River National Wildlife Refuge in an attempt to re-establish the reptiles in the area.

The alligators were captured in the Blackwater Island National Wildlife Refuge near Savannah, Ga., and released in the Arkansas wilderness late last month.

Hijackers Take Over Jet to N.Y.

By PATRICK ARNOLD
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A hijacker who said he had three accomplices and a bomb flew east with $500,000 and 48 hostages early today on the second of two jets he commandeered from Western Airlines, officials said.

Ken Erickson, a spokesman for Western, said the pilot of a 727 trijet with 98 aboard hijacked Friday afternoon out of Seattle was told by the hijacker he had three cohorts aboard.

"But all of the passengers and crew saw only one man," Erickson said. "From all indications now, there was only one."

He said the FBI reportedly had identified the hijacker, whom passengers said wore an Army uniform with insignia of a private E-1. But no identity was released.

"All we know right now is that our pilot is flying to New York," Erickson said. A Boeing 720 was turned over to the hijacker at San Francisco.

The 720 jetliner was reported over Salt Lake City, Utah, at about 10:45 p.m. (PDT), Erickson said, and was due in New York about 2:30 a.m. (PDT).

The hijacker took over the plane out of Seattle. Authorities there first said the hijackers also demanded the freedom of black militant Angela Davis. But the report of this demand was questioned by other officials.

U.S. Atty. James Browning said he was told by the Federal Aviation Administration that the hijackers were black.

Western spokesman Ken Erickson said the hijackers ordered the crew of the plane, which landed at San Francisco at 6:15 p.m. PDT, to take off again 40 minutes later and circle the airport while the money was being prepared.

The plane landed two hours later—at 8:15 p.m.—and taxied to the northeastern end of the runway, where it had previously rested.

A truck was driven out of the aircraft and a sack was transferred to the plane.

United Jet Hijacked at Reno

RENO, Nev. (AP) — A man wearing a cloth sack over his head boarded a United Air Lines 727 jetliner here Friday night and demanded $200,000 and parachutes at gunpoint, authorities said. Officers with rifles surrounded the plane.

Reno Police Chief James Parker said the man talked to authorities from the door of the aircraft as he held a .357 magnum pistol to the head of one of three stewardesses aboard.

Even before the figures were published today, the McGovern organization had made an effort to play down his rating to avoid the risk involved in casting him as a landslide favorite.

The poll rated McGovern at 46 per cent of the vote, Humphrey at 26 and Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, who is not on the ballot, third with 8 per cent.

McGovern's figures tempered by what Moot said was correct pricing would be $64.9 billion.

Moot claimed the McGovern proposal makes serious pricing errors in military pay that it grossly over estimates costs of the Vietnam war that it writes off $900 million in retired pay, and it makes huge errors in pricing for fuels, communications, space parts, operating supplies and other items.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., chairman of the Joint Economic Committee, said McGovern had accepted an inflationary policy as well as his proposed cuts in social welfare and health.

Proxmire said he has invited McGovern to a public hearing on the subject of budget cuts. He said the hearing would be held in the Senate chamber in Washington.

McGovern's proposal would cut military pay by 10 per cent, reduce the cost of the Vietnam war by 10 per cent, and cut the cost of the Korean War by 10 per cent. The proposal also would cut the cost of the Korean War by 10 per cent.

Antipollution Plans Get Parital Approval

By A. P. X. BOTHWELL
Associated Press Writer
MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Environmental officials here have demanded antismog action by three states after charging that an "industrial air pollution bank" which drifted down from the North blanketed the Sunshine State with smoky haze for five days.

Weather satellites traced the flow of "this unusual pollutive load" from industrial regions of Ohio, Pennsylvania and Tennessee, said the Dade County pollution control chief, Peter Baljet.

For five days beginning May 21, the pollution obscured the normally clear skies of Florida.

As the smog lay trapped at ground level by a temperature inversion, a rise in respiratory diseases and hospital admissions was reported.

Baljet said Wednesday he had sent letters to Environmental Protection Agency Administrator William D. Ruckelshaus, environmental control officials in the three states named, Florida's congressional delegation and Gov. Reubin Askew demanding antipollution action.

The letter to Ruckelshaus asked that the federal government initiate legal action immediately to enjoin polluters from further harming the atmosphere.

Baljet told newsmen that Ruckelshaus has the power to speed up installation of antipollution devices and programs or bring action against the states if they are dragging their feet. "Many people who are aged or in poor health come to the Sunshine State because of the clean air we have here, but this kind of smog will definitely be a public health hazard if it keeps coming our way," Baljet said.

In duplicate communications to officials in Ohio, Pennsylvania and Tennessee, Baljet asked "that you immediately make use of your power and authority to order cessation of the conditions."

"Rest assured," said a spokesman for the Ohio Health Department, "we will investigate the situation thoroughly and will be in contact with the Environmental Protection Agency to discuss it with them. After determining the real problems, we will take appropriate action."

Wiping Out Exemptions Tax Proposal

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A secret Treasury Department memorandum suggesting two bold steps to simplify federal income tax laws has added new fuel to the heated tax-reform debate.

The memorandum, written a year ago by the Treasury's top tax official, Undersecretary Edwin S. Cohen, says that eliminating all personal deductions and taxing capital gains and ordinary income at the same rate are the best ways to simplify the laws.

"The undesirability of attempting a major degree of simplification may well be judged in relation to those two categories," Cohen wrote in the memorandum, which was set to the White House for study.

The Nixon administration has publicly said that it may send Congress a proposal that would simplify the federal tax code. Cohen's memorandum, although a year old, is the first public indication of some of the ideas being discussed.

The memorandum was released Thursday by the Tax Reform Research Group, established by Ralph Nader. The Treasury conceded the memo was authentic but added that it was one of thousands of such drafts.

But the Treasury dodged questions on whether the ideas are still under consideration or whether they will be proposed in some form later this year.

Cohen actually proposed two ideas that had been discussed frequently on Capitol Hill. Capital gains are now taxed at one-half the rate of ordinary income—35 per cent compared with a maximum 70 per cent.

Cohen's suggestion would make 39 per cent a maximum for both.

Pilot Evades Enemy Then Rescued

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — A U.S. Air Force pilot who for 23 days evaded North Vietnamese troops, some coming within 20 feet of his hideaway, was rescued by a fleet of planes and helicopters deep in enemy territory Friday.

"There didn't seem like much hope, but I never gave up," Capt. Roger C. Locher, 28, of Sabetha, Kan. said today after he was lifted out by 30 to 40 aircraft under a hail of enemy gunfire in steep mountainous terrain northwest of Hanoi.

Locher, who is credited with shooting down three North Vietnamese MIG interceptors, was shot down May 10 on his 407th combat mission. The second crewman aboard the F4 is missing, the Air Force said.

"I'm a little weak but I'll pick it back up," said Locher, whose weight dropped from 180 pounds to 150 during the ordeal.

"I shaved a couple of times for the hell of it," he said in a telephone interview from his Thailand base. "There was nothing else to do. I used a surgical knife from my survival kit. I was getting to look pretty scruffy."

Locher still had several days growth of beard and a big grin when the rescue helicopter landed him at the base.

When Locher bailed out of his crippled Phantom, he kept mopping.

"I ate assorted fruits from the trees and imagined they were steaks. I drank rain and stream water and imagined it was beer. I was getting pretty hungry. But I never had any trouble sleeping, only when it rained."

Several times, Locher recalled, North Vietnamese troops got as close as 20 feet to his position but never detected him.

Locher could hear F4 jets screaming overhead as they streaked to their targets deep inside North Vietnam day after day.

But the pilots, alerted to listen to radio signals from Locher, didn't pick up his beeper until Thursday. His position was confirmed and the rescue armada moved in through heavy North Vietnamese ground fire to lift him out.

Locher has served 20 months as a combat pilot with 68 missions over North Vietnam and the rest over Laos and South Vietnam. He voluntarily extended 12 months beyond his first one-year tour. Military spokesmen said his second tour would be cut short by four months and he would be reassigned out of the combat zone because of having already gone through one ordeal.

Indians Get Oklahoma Riverland

DENVER (AP) — The 10th Circuit Court of Appeals ruled Thursday that three Indian tribes own a part of the Arkansas River bed in Oklahoma.

The tribunal upheld a federal court decision in Oklahoma that all of the Arkansas' bed between the Grand River and the Canadian River belongs to the Cherokee Nation and that the Cherokees also own the northern part of the river bed between the Canadian River and the Oklahoma-Arkansas state line.

The court also ruled that the Choctaw and Chickasaw Nations own the southern half of the river bed.

The court, nevertheless avoided getting into a controversy between the Cherokees and the other two nations. The Choctaws and the Chickasaws claim ownership of all of the river between the Canadian and the Oklahoma-Arkansas line.

South thought for quite a while before passing his partner's six-club bid. He finally decided that grand slams were wonderful but small slams were rich enough for his blood.

He won the spade lead in his hand and noted that there was some slight play for seven and that even six was not a guaranteed contract.

Then South proceeded to play the hand very carefully to bring home his contract in spite of a 5-2 diamond break and badly placed hearts.

He started out by leading a diamond to dummy's ace and ruffing a second diamond. Back to dummy with the king of trumps to ruff a third diamond and get the bad news that dummy's fifth diamond was not going to set up.

This didn't worry South at all. Trumps were breaking 2-1 and his slam was home.

If you don't see the sure thing play, here it is. South just led a second club to dummy and ruffed another diamond. Back to dummy with the ace of spades in order to lead dummy's last diamond but South didn't ruff this one. He simply discarded his seven of hearts and showed West his hand.

West was right between a rock and a hard place. If he led his last spade, South would ruff in dummy and discard his queen of hearts. If he led a heart it would be right up to South's ace-queen.

Wedding Vows Are Repeated

MRS. DANNY RAY TURNER

In a candlelight ceremony, Miss Judith Holly Croom, daughter of Mrs. Ellen Croom, became the bride of Danny Ray Turner, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Z. Turner, at seven-thirty o'clock, Friday, June 2, in the sanctuary of the First United Methodist Church of Hope.

Marriage vows were exchanged before Rev. Norris Steele in a double ring ceremony. Baskets of pink gladioli flanked the altar setting consisting of two seven-branch candelabras arranged to form a pyramid and on each side fifteen-branch spiral candelabras. The candelabras held pink cathedral tapers, and foliage and greenery completed the setting. The aisles were lighted with pink tapers adorned with pink satin bows and greenery.

A program of nuptial music was provided by organist, Mrs. Arthur Stetch, who accompanied Miss Susan Turner as she sang "The Sweetest Story Ever Told" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Given in marriage by her cousin, Ronald P. Jones of Camden, the bride wore a traditional gown of candlelight peau de soie featuring hand-run Alencon lace embellished with seed pearls and crystal beads. Appliqued on French net, the beads formed a portrait neckline and encircled the natural wasteline. Deep folds of the silk formed a full carriage back which swept into a chapel train. Garlands of lace were applique down the entire length of the controlled skirt.

The bride's headpiece was a tulip crown of Alencon lace embroidered in pearls which held her full-length veil of imported silk illusion. She carried a Victorian nosegay of deep pink carnations, purple statice, light pink roses and baby's breath.

Miss Laura Dianne Croom, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. Her floor length gown was fashioned of pink voile with a cummerbund of green velvet. Irish lace enhanced the bodice, sleeves and eight-inch ruffle at the hemline. She carried a small Victorian cluster similar to that of the bride and in the same colors. Miss Tracy Milon Turner, niece of the groom, was flower girl. Her dress was a miniature version of that worn by the maid of honor.

Serving his brother as best man was Terry Dwain Turner, and ushers included another brother, Dennis Edward Turner. Other ushers were William Michael Tolleson, Allen D. Verser and Marion Michael Monroe.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Croom selected a dress of aqua crepe with an aqua lace jacket and matching accessories. Her corsage was of white rosebuds. The groom's mother wore a white dress with pink and green flowers and pink accessories. Her corsage was pink rosebuds.

A reception was held at the Heritage House immediately following the ceremony. The serving table, covered with white net, was centered with a crystal opertine containing an arrangement of rose and light pink carnations, tea roses and baby's breath. The epergne was flanked on either side by five-branch silver candelabras holding pink tapers.

Presiding at the guest book was Mrs. Paul Jones, Aunt of the bride. Also assisting at the reception were Mrs. Dennis Turner, Mrs. Mike Monroe, Miss Rita Taylor and Miss Mary Ella Impson.

After a honeymoon through North Arkansas the couple will be at home in Hope.

Climer Unimpressed With Votes

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Jerome Climer of Little Rock, Republican candidate for secretary of state, said Thursday he intended to show during the campaign that the office of secretary of state could be run more responsibly than in the past.

Climer, who is Pulaski County Clerk, said that during the campaign he intended to compare his record as county clerk with the record of Secretary of State Kelly Bryant, who won the Democratic nomination for another term in Tuesday's primary.

Climer said he was "unimpressed" with the percentage by which Bryant won the nomination. Bryant finished with 53 per cent of the votes cast in the four-man race.

"I was quite unimpressed with the percentage of votes that Bryant got, because he usually gets 60 per cent or better," Climer said. "This in itself is a positive indication that he is on his way out."

Climer said the "office was stagnated" — 10 years is too long," He said Bryant "needed to be out of office."

Antismog Action Demanded

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Dale Bumpers said Thursday that the state revenue surplus at the end of this fiscal year could be more than $12 million. However, he did not give an estimate.

Bumpers also said balances in agency accounts at the end of the year could range from $4 million to $6 million.

He has said that he anticipates a surplus to finance projects that he plans to propose, such as a renovation of the University of Arkansas Medical Center at Little Rock.

The governor also said he was considering a revision of the income tax rates for lower-income persons. He said he had asked the University of Arkansas Industrial Research and Extension Center to give him figures on the effect of a removal of the income tax for families of four with incomes of less than $4,000 a year.

Big Hoss Can't Be Replaced

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — The death of Dan Blocker really shook this town. The big Bonanza star had seemed to be recovering nicely from his gall bladder operation.

I spoke to Lorne Greene two days after Dan died and got the details.

Lorne said that last season Dan had had a touch of pancreatitis and cut out smoking and drinking and seemed to be fine. Then, later, there was a little pain and the doctors suggested he have the gall bladder surgery.

"Dan was a little apprehensive," Lorne said, "because he worried about what the surgeon would find. But he was clean as a whistle."

The operation was May 1. Lorne visited Dan in the hospital and found him in good spirits. He was full of plans for building a new boat. He was exercising and very optimistic.

He was released from the hospital Friday, May 12. The next day he woke up, complaining of shortness of breath. They took him to the hospital and he died that afternoon.

Lorne was in Maryland, but flew back to Hollywood immediately. His first stop was at the Blocker home. He said Dan's widow, Dolphia, kept saying, "I don't believe it's happened." Three of the four Blocker children were in Switzerland, but one of the 18-year-old twins, Debra, was there and was a great comfort to her mother.

Dan Blocker

The unexpected death of a nice guy shook Hollywood.

Lorne says he's been told the show will continue but nobody yet knows in what form. I spoke to Bonanza's executive producer, David Dortort, who said that he would be meeting with NBC's executives to decide on a future course.

"One thing I'm sure of," Dortort said, "is that Dan Blocker can't be replaced.

And I do know this: no one will ever play Hoss Cartwright again."

The Selling of the President '72

Joe McGinniss, who wrote the huge best-seller, "The Selling of the President," about the '68 campaign, was in town. He's written a novel, "The Dream Team," which has nothing at all to do with politics. "The Dream Team" seems a sure bet for a movie sale.

But I wanted to see how McGinniss assessed the way the various Democratic presidential hopefuls are being sold on TV this year. He says he doesn't think TV is as important in primary battles as it is in a presidential campaign because TV's effect is a cumulative one and the primaries don't give it enough time to be effective.

He thinks, however, that George McGovern is being sold wisely.

"Four years ago," McGinniss says, "he looked like he came from South Dakota, a rumpled suit. You could almost see the South Dakota dust all over him. The wisest thing he did was let Gloria Steinem take him in hand two years ago. She went shopping with him, saw that he bought new suits and had a new haircut and the result is a new McGovern."

Muskie's problem, McGinniss believes, was that "the folksy, rocking chair, Lincnesque appeal was fine for a while but after a few years it became stultifying." He says that Lindsay's campaign was all wrong "his main attraction is glamor and they played that down and, instead, tried to sell him as a man of the people, rubbing armpits with the guy in the street."

As for Kennedy, McGinniss dismisses him in a handful of words.

"No chance," McGinniss says. "He'd be the easiest for Nixon to beat. If he were to run, there would only be one campaign issue: Chap quaidick."

Helen and Sue Bottel The Generation Rap

She Can Sure Type and File... DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

There's a big argument at our house.

My mother is having a crisis because I won't take at least two years of typing. She says that's security for a girl. If she can type she can always get a job.

I say if I have to type and file for a living, I'd just as soon marry a male chauvinist and vegetate at home. I've heard of girls with Master's degrees applying for jobs and the first question asked is, "Can you type?" That's not for me! Really, the female typewriter-jockey thing is as bad as the business about blacks—"Yes, but they can sure sing and dance"—and I'm going to make sure no one types me into the little office wife bit.

I can hunt and peck well enough to do college themes. I won't waste my time learning a lowly trade I'll never use. Are you with me, Sue and Helen? —COLLEGE AND CAREER BOUND

DEAR C AND CB:

Darn right, I'm with you! When a man applies for an office job, he isn't asked, first thing, "Can you type?" Why? Because HE can always draw from the secretarial pool HE is "management trainee," y'see, while the girl with the college degree too often ends up at the old typewriter desk.

If you aren't trained for secretarial work, you won't get sidetracked into it. Aim for a CAREER you enjoy, and if you don't enjoy typing, don't waste a lot of classroom time on it. —SUE

DEAR CAB:

Sorry, I'm NOT with you — all the way.

I don't like the old "Yes, but can she type?" bit any better than you do—BUT why limit yourself to "hunt and peck" when classroom training and diligent practice can pay so many dividends?

College instructors frown on handwritten themes. A non-typist must often pay a "secretary" up to $1.00 a page for acceptable copy (which "hit or miss" pecking often isn't). Moreover, people who think via

Butterfly Prices Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The price of butterfly is going up. The Price Commission granted Stacy Fabrics Corp. permission Tuesday to raise prices on the product by an average of 13.8 per cent.

Butterfly, the commission explained, is polyester lining for women's garments.

The Joshua tree was given its name by the Morans because the tree seemed to be lifting its arms in a gesture of surprise as did the human body.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The Recording Industry Assn. of America issued 146 Gold Recording Awards in 1971. The World Almanac notes that these awards are made in two categories: for single discs the association certifies as having sold a million copies, and for long-play albums and tape equivalents it certifies as having sold $1 million in sales reckoned at one-third of the list price.

THEY SHALL NOT PASS is the idea of the flea collar Dr. Grover Cloyd helped develop. The collar slowly releases tiny amounts of pesticide, killing fleas passing over or under to reach the moisture sources on the dog's head.

Great Year—for Flea Bites

By DAVID HENDIN
NEA Science Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Consider the flea. If you have a dog or cat, you probably already have.

The flea is a pest, a parasite, a bloodsucker. It is a circus performer, mass murderer and a tormenter of animals.

More simply, though, the flea is an insect, and a tiny one at that. Ctenocephalides canis is the dog flea, ctenocephalides felis is the cat flea, and so on down the line through almost every mammal. Each has a flea of his own.

Many of the fleas are named for the kind of animals upon which they were first found. Thus the cat flea is not found exclusively on cats, in fact they are probably most common on dogs. Human fleas, too, are becoming increasingly common on dogs, according to one of the world's foremost authorities on the flea, Dr. Grover Cloyd.

Indeed, while fleas most commonly make pests of themselves on family pets, they can bother the family, too. "Fleas that might get on people produce irritation due to frequent bites and allergic rashes can occur. Flea bites are often mistaken for chiggers or mosquitoes," says Dr. Cloyd, director of veterinary medicine for the A. H. Robins Co.

On dogs and cats fleas can cause more problems: they are highly irritating, the itching may induce self-mutilation by the animal, allergic rashes can occur and fleas carry diseases such as the dog and cat tapeworm. In fact, the bubonic plague, or Black Death, rampant in Europe for three centuries—killing hundreds of thousands of people—was caused by fleas. The roof rats, then predominant in Europe, roamed the attics and roofs. When the rats died their fleas sought meals of blood and jumped to people, thus spreading the disease from the dead rats.

Fleas, which neither walk nor fly, but jump, spend only a very short time on their host animal, hopping on about 10 per cent of the time to copulate and snatch a free meal of nourishing blood. If the family goes on vacation, and the family dog is boarded for a few weeks, many fleas are bound to be hanging out in the rug, getting hungrier by the day.

When the family comes home the fleas will jump on the nearest living thing for a feast. If that living thing is you, you have fleas.

Flea populations tend to run in two-year cycles. Dr. Cloyd says, and since last year we had a most warm Indian summer, great flea fleas, we are likely to have a bad year this year.

How can fleas be controlled? In the past it has always been a difficult task, since they live in the rug and in the animal.

Then came the soaps, baths, powders and sprays.

"The trouble with these things was that they were rather fleeting in their effect. You had to apply them every few days. They didn't keep the pressure on the fleas," Dr. Cloyd says.

In other words, the Virginia veterinarian adds, "If you want to starve a dog in a meathouse, you can't take the muzzie off overnight."

Of course the entire house could be fumigated to eliminate fleas, but this is the hard way since dogs (and cats)—walking flea collectors that they are—will bring some more home.

"The best way to do it," Dr. Cloyd says, "is to let the dog be his own exterminator." This is just what is accomplished by the flea collar, which Dr. Cloyd helped to develop.

The plastic collars, made by the Robins Co., are impregnated with the pesticide DDVP, trademarked Vapona. It is the same chemical used in the controversial Shell No-Pest Strip, but the strip has 10 times more gas generating power than the collars.

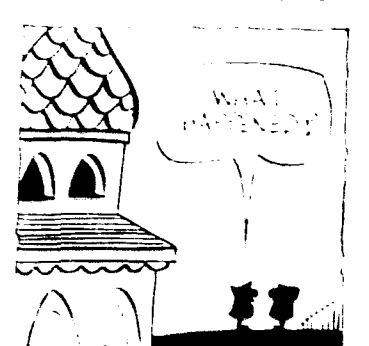

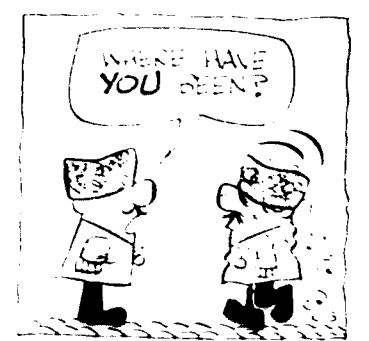

Flea collars work so well on dogs and cats because the fleas must have moisture to drink every day. They get this from the animal's mouth, nose or eyes, and they must get to these places via the neck, thus passing the collar which is lethal to them.

DDVP is not a persistent pesticide, rather it is easily broken up to harmless components in water. Kevin Shea, scientific director of the Committee for Environmental Information in St. Louis — whose "Environment" magazine blasted the No-Pest Strip a year or so ago—says the collars seem to be safe because of the tiny amounts of the pesticide they contain and the fact that the dog is always in motion, keeping the vapors from building up.

"Of all the ways to handle fleas this is as good as any," says Shea, himself a trained insect specialist.

The compass plant is so-called because its leaves and branches point in the direction of the cardinal points of the compass.
